If Not You, Then Who? by Ron Barbour

Budget. Savings. Checking Account. Investing. Passive income. Multiple sources of income. Interest. These are a few things we must get familiar with in order to achieve financial freedom and stability. Unless we really believe financial success can be a part of our life, it is going to be next to impossible to implement any how-to steps...

We are living in a society where people in all walks of life are achieving and accomplishing many things. Every day someone is writing a book, opening a new business, inventing a new product or service. Every day someone is reaching their goal: getting a diploma, obtaining a promotion, opening a franchise. Every day someone is hitting their financial target, whether it is $1,000 in savings, 500 shares of a stock, or having a net worth of a million dollars.

Why can't the next person to reach a certain financial level be you? Why can't you have $50,000 in savings? Retire at 50? There are too many people reaching financial stability in our society for you not to be one of them. Have more faith in your ability to achieve financial freedom. I believe each of you can walk in total financial freedom, and I hope you believe you can too.

Those who have achieved financial stability and freedom are no smarter than you. Have no more education than you. They are the same color as you. They come from the same side of the tracks. The people who achieved any level of financial accomplishment have one thing in common: They simply believed they could.

You have what it takes to reach any financial level you like. Tomorrow, next week, next month, and next year—people in our country will be accomplishing great things. You might as well be one of them.

If not you, then who?
